Widowed by the Third Reich, Marina is driven by grief – and fury – to join the fight for freedom as a Russian partisan as a sharp shooter, protecting the partisans as they sabotage supply lines. The last thing she expects is to be thrown into the fray with a handsome – and protective – OSS Agent from America.

Super Spy Edward Neumann is running from the mistakes he made in Poland when his entire crew was murdered. Now, with redemption on his mind, he will stop at nothing to accomplish his mission.

Until he discovers that the beautiful partisan whose been helping him has a secret that just might get her killed. Now, he has to decide between following his heart or redeeming his past, and either decision will change his life forever.

“Susan has woven a bittersweet story of love and hope set in a tumultuous period of Russian history. Marina has many things: intrigue, suspense, tears, joy, and most of all, hope. It will draw you in and hold you to the very end.” www.ChristianBookPreviews.com
