Livers Larry Francis

"History and theater come together in this compelling story of fate, love and loss."

A self-proclaimed monster obsessed with personal prehistory narrates a dramatic tale of life and death. Armed with a box of heirlooms and some dubious family anecdotes, he sets out to recreate the awful generational truth surrounding his origins.

His hypnotic saga spans twenty-five years and deftly unpacks the dysfunctional relationship of two identical twins and the women who love them.

"LIVERS depicts the absurd theatricality of family history."
